Meet-up in New Jersey

by Rosanna Buehl

Considerable flooding was all around us and the weather forecast had promised more rain. But the storm went through early, so Intrepid Lancashire Heelers and their equally intrepid owners gathered in the Rosedale Park District in west-central New Jersey for a much-anticipated meet-up.

Six Lancashire Heelers, one honorary LH, and several local dogs romped, growled, barked, chased, marked, laughed, and made general nuisances of themselves on a brisk but beautiful March afternoon.

The humans had a good time getting acquainted, swapping stories, and admiring one another's dogs.

We had hoped that USLHC member, Freddy Adam-Jupillat would be able to join us—after all, she was the one who chose and set up the location for us. Unfortunately, she had an inescapable commitment that afternoon. Had she brought Rémy, all three litter brothers—Gambit, Rémy, and Ruffy—would have been together.

We also missed USLHC member, Elaine Giannelli and her two, Pippin and Reyda. Had they not been scheduled to attend a health clinic, they would've come down from Massachusetts, too. The girls passed their screenings with flying colors.

From Near and Far

People brought their dogs from across town, from elsewhere in New Jersey, down from New England, and even from out West in Montana. USLHC member Kelly Hererra and her son, Felix, came down from Massachusetts with Gambit, and members Rosanna Buehl and Mark Taylor brought Gambit's brother, Ruffy, from Montana. The brothers, now three, met for the first time since they left their breeder.
